Purchased with funds of a private endowment the area of 1,1000 square meters offers space for around 1,2 million trees. The area degraded by deforestation, which Plant-for-the-Planet has acquired for the purpose of reforestation, encloses a natural lagoon with high biodiversity. This lagoon extends into a forest area that has already been reforested. Weiterlesen

Plant-for-the-Planet plants one tree every 15 seconds. When the children and youth initiative first took over the area, it was a sad sight: vast areas had either been entirely deforested or were severely degraded through the logging of economically valuable trees. Today, we employ over 100 reforesters in the project and the affiliated tree nursery. Weiterlesen

ITF was formed in Kenya in 1922 when Richard St Barbe Baker and Chief Josiah Njonjo formed 'Watu wa Miti' – the People of the Trees. This became the society of the Men of the Trees, a worldwide organisation that promoted forest conservation and tree planting on a huge scale. To celebrate the 100-year anniversary of this founding, Weiterlesen

<https://www.trilliontreecampaign.org/biosphere-bosawas-indigenous-reserve>

The Bosawas Biosphere Reserve is one of the largest contiguous forest in Latin America. It is a rich landscape with 21 different ecosystem types and is home to 13% of known species worldwide. There are numerous rare and endangered animals like Jaguars, Giant Anteaters, Baird's Tapir, and more than 200,000 species of insect. The reserve stretches across the Nicaraguan-Honduran border and is an integral part of the Mesoamerican Biological corridor – which connects 8 countries and provides free movement for biodiversity.

We would like to restore the Biosphere Bosawas back to 100% health, starting with the first 5% in 2021 and over the next 20 years restore over 600,000 hectares of destroyed rain forest with both Castor and Tropical Indigenous trees.

Eden Aufforstungsprojekt in Kenia

Spende über 5003 Bäume (01.04.2022)

Webseite: <https://www.edenprojects.org/case-studies/kenya>

About the project: In Kenya, Eden works in the 5,000-hectare protected Kijabe Forest. It's about 1.5 hours from Kenya's capital, Nairobi, on the edges of the Great Rift Valley. Over the past 15 years, the forest has been cleared for charcoal and timber, reducing the number of permanent rivers flowing from eight to one. Additionally, rains have become unreliable, catastrophic landslides have taken lives and damaged important infrastructure, and peoples' livelihood options have suffered. Ask anyone around the forest — the impacts of deforestation are clear. Eden partners with a local forest trust, the Kijabe Forest Trust, regional and national government institutions, and the surrounding agricultural and pastoral communities to restore this crucial forest.

Eden Aufforstungsprojekt in Mosambik

Spende über 5023 Bäume (28.12.2022)

Webseite: <https://www.edenprojects.org/our-work/mozambique>

About the project: More than 8 million hectares of forest (over 30,000 square miles) have been destroyed. Cyclones, floods, cutting down trees for firewood and charcoal, clearing large areas for farmland, and commercial logging are the leading causes of deforestation in Mozambique. With over 45% of Mozambique's population living beneath the poverty line, communities rely heavily on natural resources and forests. With a seed source and a local workforce in place, the reforestation program launched in 2018 along the rivers and coastline in Southern Mozambique (close to Maputo). This Mangrove restoration and reforestation provides stability against erosion and improves the ocean and coral reef health.
